WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE	APR	The housing market is one of the most interest-rate sensitive parts of the economy. Between the Fed's recent rate hikes and the likelihood of recession next year, mortgage rates have turned increasingly volatile. As of August 4, the average 30-year mortgage rate was 4.99%, according to Freddie Mac, up 2.22% from one year ago. Significantly higher rates have raised the costs of obtaining a mortgage, and in the second quarter, there was $75BB in newly originated mortgage debt. Mortgage balances increased by $207B this quarter and stood at $11.39T, up 9% from last year. Although foreclosures have been low due to the moratoria on new foreclosures and mortgage forbearances, they increased by 46% quarter-over quarter to 35,000 people; this suggests the beginning of a return to normal after the culmination of low mortgage rates, pandemic-induced stimulus and greater housing demand seen the past two years. We forecast that the Fed will continue to hike interest rates through the end of this year; this in turn will likely adversely affect the housing market, and we can expect mortgage debt to continue to increase. WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE	APR	The housing market is one of the most interest-rate sensitive parts of the economy. Between the Fed's recent rate hikes and the likelihood of recession next year, mortgage rates have turned increasingly volatile. As of August 4, the average 30-year mortgage rate was 4.99%, according to Freddie Mac, up 2.22% from one year ago. Significantly higher rates have raised the costs of obtaining a mortgage, and in the second quarter, there was $75BB in newly originated mortgage debt. Mortgage balances increased by $207B this quarter and stood at $11.39T, up 9% from last year. Although foreclosures have been low due to the moratoria on new foreclosures and mortgage forbearances, they increased by 46% quarter-over quarter to 35,000 people; this suggests the beginning of a return to normal after the culmination of low mortgage rates, pandemic-induced stimulus and greater housing demand seen the past two years. We forecast that the Fed will continue to hike interest rates through the end of this year; this in turn will likely adversely affect the housing market, and we can expect mortgage debt to continue to increase. WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 5.25%	APR 5.30%	The housing market is one of the most interest-rate sensitive parts of the economy. Between the Fed's recent rate hikes and the likelihood of recession next year, mortgage rates have turned increasingly volatile. As of August 4, the average 30-year mortgage rate was 4.99%, according to Freddie Mac, up 2.22% from one year ago. Significantly higher rates have raised the costs of obtaining a mortgage, and in the second quarter, there was $75BB in newly originated mortgage debt. Mortgage balances increased by $207B this quarter and stood at $11.39T, up 9% from last year. Although foreclosures have been low due to the moratoria on new foreclosures and mortgage forbearances, they increased by 46% quarter-over quarter to 35,000 people; this suggests the beginning of a return to normal after the culmination of low mortgage rates, pandemic-induced stimulus and greater housing demand seen the past two years. We forecast that the Fed will continue to hike interest rates through the end of this year; this in turn will likely adversely affect the housing market, and we can expect mortgage debt to continue to increase.
