WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
	RATE	APR	Residential construction ended 2024 on a positive note, as total starts surged 15.8% in December. While single-family starts rose, the jump in overall starts was largely owed to a staggering 61.5% jump in multifamily starts. Multifamily starts are notably volatile on a monthly basis, and December's performance is a testament to that. Hurricane-rebuilding efforts added an extra layer of noise to multifamily construction, highlighted by activity in the South more than doubling from November to December, driving 75% of the overall national increase. Following trend improvement in permits in the second half of 2024, single-family starts rose for the second straight month, up 1.6%. Single-family permits climbed for the third consecutive month, though the increase was largely concentrated in the South, boosted from hurricane-rebuilding efforts. Home builders completed 1.628M units in 2024, up 12.4% from 2023 and the highest since 2006. Encouragingly, housing completions are adding to the housing stock, though not by enough to keep pace with demand. For January, we look for partial retracement in activity with total housing starts decreasing 6.6% to a 1,400K annualized unit pace. The NAHB Housing Market Index has risen in four of the past five months as of January as builders remain reasonably optimistic about the outlook. The optimism can be owed to anticipation of reduced regulation and a continued solid labor market, and overall economic activity that would underpin future home sales and increased buyer traffic. WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV FHA	RATE	APR	Residential construction ended 2024 on a positive note, as total starts surged 15.8% in December. While single-family starts rose, the jump in overall starts was largely owed to a staggering 61.5% jump in multifamily starts. Multifamily starts are notably volatile on a monthly basis, and December's performance is a testament to that. Hurricane-rebuilding efforts added an extra layer of noise to multifamily construction, highlighted by activity in the South more than doubling from November to December, driving 75% of the overall national increase. Following trend improvement in permits in the second half of 2024, single-family starts rose for the second straight month, up 1.6%. Single-family permits climbed for the third consecutive month, though the increase was largely concentrated in the South, boosted from hurricane-rebuilding efforts. Home builders completed 1.628M units in 2024, up 12.4% from 2023 and the highest since 2006. Encouragingly, housing completions are adding to the housing stock, though not by enough to keep pace with demand. For January, we look for partial retracement in activity with total housing starts decreasing 6.6% to a 1,400K annualized unit pace. The NAHB Housing Market Index has risen in four of the past five months as of January as builders remain reasonably optimistic about the outlook. The optimism can be owed to anticipation of reduced regulation and a continued solid labor market, and overall economic activity that would underpin future home sales and increased buyer traffic. WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
	RATE	APR	Residential construction ended 2024 on a positive note, as total starts surged 15.8% in December. While single-family starts rose, the jump in overall starts was largely owed to a staggering 61.5% jump in multifamily starts. Multifamily starts are notably volatile on a monthly basis, and December's performance is a testament to that. Hurricane-rebuilding efforts added an extra layer of noise to multifamily construction, highlighted by activity in the South more than doubling from November to December, driving 75% of the overall national increase. Following trend improvement in permits in the second half of 2024, single-family starts rose for the second straight month, up 1.6%. Single-family permits climbed for the third consecutive month, though the increase was largely concentrated in the South, boosted from hurricane-rebuilding efforts. Home builders completed 1.628M units in 2024, up 12.4% from 2023 and the highest since 2006. Encouragingly, housing completions are adding to the housing stock, though not by enough to keep pace with demand. For January, we look for partial retracement in activity with total housing starts decreasing 6.6% to a 1,400K annualized unit pace. The NAHB Housing Market Index has risen in four of the past five months as of January as builders remain reasonably optimistic about the outlook. The optimism can be owed to anticipation of reduced regulation and a continued solid labor market, and overall economic activity that would underpin future home sales and increased buyer traffic.
