WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 6.45%	APR 6.55%
FHA	6.35%	6.65%	The housing market may have found its bottom. Recent data have demonstrated a bounce in activity with home sales and construction both having perked up in recent months. Housing starts soared 21.7% in May to a 1.63 million-unit annual pace, and while total starts are still down nearly 16% on a year-to-date basis, the jump in May was unusually large and broad-based. We expect some payback in June from the large gain in May construction and forecast housing starts to decline to about a 1.48 million-unit annual pace. Builders are scaling up development in response to more favorable supply side conditions and a steady stream of buyers disheartened by a dearth of existing inventory. Improved conditions have lifted builder confidence to the highest level in nearly a year. Residential construction thus appears to be gathering momentum despite higher interest rates. While we look for some recovery in housing starts over the course of the year, elevated rates and a moderating labor market will likely put a ceiling on single-family activity. WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

CONV	RATE	APR
	6.45%	6.55%	The housing market may have found its bottom. Recent data have demonstrated a bounce in activity with home sales and construction both having perked up in recent months. Housing starts soared 21.7% in May to a 1.63 million-unit annual pace, and while total starts are still down nearly 16% on a year-to-date basis, the jump in May was unusually large and broad-based. We expect some payback in June from the large gain in May construction and forecast housing starts to decline to about a 1.48 million-unit annual pace. Builders are scaling up development in response to more favorable supply side conditions and a steady stream of buyers disheartened by a dearth of existing inventory. Improved conditions have lifted builder confidence to the highest level in nearly a year. Residential construction thus appears to be gathering momentum despite higher interest rates. While we look for some recovery in housing starts over the course of the year, elevated rates and a moderating labor market will likely put a ceiling on single-family activity. WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

CONV	RATE 6.45%	APR 6.55%
FHA	6.35%	6.65%	The housing market may have found its bottom. Recent data have demonstrated a bounce in activity with home sales and construction both having perked up in recent months. Housing starts soared 21.7% in May to a 1.63 million-unit annual pace, and while total starts are still down nearly 16% on a year-to-date basis, the jump in May was unusually large and broad-based. We expect some payback in June from the large gain in May construction and forecast housing starts to decline to about a 1.48 million-unit annual pace. Builders are scaling up development in response to more favorable supply side conditions and a steady stream of buyers disheartened by a dearth of existing inventory. Improved conditions have lifted builder confidence to the highest level in nearly a year. Residential construction thus appears to be gathering momentum despite higher interest rates. While we look for some recovery in housing starts over the course of the year, elevated rates and a moderating labor market will likely put a ceiling on single-family activity.
