WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing		Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 6.75%	APR 6.80%
FHA	6.75%	7.27%
10 Yr Yield	4.22%
		Beating expectations for the fourth straight month, total nonfarm payrolls increased 275K in February. The headline's strength, however, was offset by large downward revisions in the prior months as January's gain was cut to 229K (from 353K) and December's tally was sliced to 290K (from 333K). Job growth was broad-based last month with private education & health care, leisure & hospitality and trade & transportation leading the private sector. Modest losses were seen in manufacturing and temporary help, which has fallen for 23 consecutive months. The unemployment rate increased to a two-year high of 3.9% in February, fueled by a 184K contraction in household employment, and the labor force participation rate remained steady at 62.5% for the third straight month. In an encouraging sign for the Fed, average hourly earnings rose a softer-than-expected 0.1% over the month, with the year-over-year rate ticking down to 4.3%. The labor market is holding up remarkably well despite tighter monetary policy. That said, there are several signs pointing to further moderation in the months ahead, including little sign of a resurgence in labor demand. Firms have reduced demand for labor by listing fewer openings, and fewer workers are quitting as job prospects have diminished relative to a year ago. The labor market's performance continues to reinforce the Fed's view of the resilience of the economic expansion and supports current market projections for a rate cut no earlier than midyear. WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 6.75%	APR 6.80%	Beating expectations for the fourth straight month, total nonfarm payrolls increased 275K in February. The headline's strength, however, was offset by large downward revisions in the prior months as January's gain was cut to 229K (from 353K) and December's tally was sliced to 290K (from 333K). Job growth was broad-based last month with private education & health care, leisure & hospitality and trade & transportation leading the private sector. Modest losses were seen in manufacturing and temporary help, which has fallen for 23 consecutive months. The unemployment rate increased to a two-year high of 3.9% in February, fueled by a 184K contraction in household employment, and the labor force participation rate remained steady at 62.5% for the third straight month. In an encouraging sign for the Fed, average hourly earnings rose a softer-than-expected 0.1% over the month, with the year-over-year rate ticking down to 4.3%. The labor market is holding up remarkably well despite tighter monetary policy. That said, there are several signs pointing to further moderation in the months ahead, including little sign of a resurgence in labor demand. Firms have reduced demand for labor by listing fewer openings, and fewer workers are quitting as job prospects have diminished relative to a year ago. The labor market's performance continues to reinforce the Fed's view of the resilience of the economic expansion and supports current market projections for a rate cut no earlier than midyear. WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 6.75%	APR 6.80%	Beating expectations for the fourth straight month, total nonfarm payrolls increased 275K in February. The headline's strength, however, was offset by large downward revisions in the prior months as January's gain was cut to 229K (from 353K) and December's tally was sliced to 290K (from 333K). Job growth was broad-based last month with private education & health care, leisure & hospitality and trade & transportation leading the private sector. Modest losses were seen in manufacturing and temporary help, which has fallen for 23 consecutive months. The unemployment rate increased to a two-year high of 3.9% in February, fueled by a 184K contraction in household employment, and the labor force participation rate remained steady at 62.5% for the third straight month. In an encouraging sign for the Fed, average hourly earnings rose a softer-than-expected 0.1% over the month, with the year-over-year rate ticking down to 4.3%. The labor market is holding up remarkably well despite tighter monetary policy. That said, there are several signs pointing to further moderation in the months ahead, including little sign of a resurgence in labor demand. Firms have reduced demand for labor by listing fewer openings, and fewer workers are quitting as job prospects have diminished relative to a year ago. The labor market's performance continues to reinforce the Fed's view of the resilience of the economic expansion and supports current market projections for a rate cut no earlier than midyear.
