WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 6.50%	APR 6.64%
FHA	6.13%	6.94%	The housing market is softening amid elevated rates, prices eroding affordability and increased uncertainty denting buying and building conditions. Single-family housing starts rose modestly in May, but remain weak, and building permits fell to a five-year low last month, indicating less construction in coming months. Homebuilders cite current sales conditions as being at their worst point since 2012. Tariffs and a crackdown on immigration are bidding up construction costs, but lower demand is also weighing on builder sentiment. Existing home sales slipped for the third time in four months to 0.5% in April, to a 4.0 million annualized pace, and while new home sales rose to the highest level in three years, it was likely only a temporary pop. For May, we expect more of the same and for sales to remain within their narrow ranges from the past couple of years. We look for existing home sales to slow to a 3.93 million seasonally adjusted annual rate in May, which would near recently-hit lows. For new home sales, we expect they also slipped but to a 682K rate. Mortgage rates have moved higher again in recent months, eroding demand. Inventory also remains a challenge. Slower sales have allowed for a slight uptick in available supply, but most of the new supply has come from new construction and overall inventories remain low, keeping prices elevated and demand strapped. We expect it will be some time before we see the housing market regain its footing. Source: Wells Fargo Bank Weekly Economic & Financial Commentary

WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing		Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 6.50%	APR 6.64%
FHA	6.13%	6.94%
10 Yr Yield	4.30%	The housing market is softening amid elevated rates, prices eroding affordability and increased uncertainty denting buying and building conditions. Single-family housing starts rose modestly in May, but remain weak, and building permits fell to a five-year low last month, indicating less construction in coming months. Homebuilders cite current sales conditions as being at their worst point since 2012. Tariffs and a crackdown on immigration are bidding up construction costs, but lower demand is also weighing on builder sentiment. Existing home sales slipped for the third time in four months to 0.5% in April, to a 4.0 million annualized pace, and while new home sales rose to the highest level in three years, it was likely only a temporary pop. For May, we expect more of the same and for sales to remain within their narrow ranges from the past couple of years. We look for existing home sales to slow to a 3.93 million seasonally adjusted annual rate in May, which would near recently-hit lows. For new home sales, we expect they also slipped but to a 682K rate. Mortgage rates have moved higher again in recent months, eroding demand. Inventory also remains a challenge. Slower sales have allowed for a slight uptick in available supply, but most of the new supply has come from new construction and overall inventories remain low, keeping prices elevated and demand strapped. We expect it will be some time before we see the housing market regain its footing. Source: Wells Fargo Bank Weekly Economic & Financial Commentary

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 6.50%	APR 6.64%	The housing market is softening amid elevated rates, prices eroding affordability and increased uncertainty denting buying and building conditions. Single-family housing starts rose modestly in May, but remain weak, and building permits fell to a five-year low last month, indicating less construction in coming months. Homebuilders cite current sales conditions as being at their worst point since 2012. Tariffs and a crackdown on immigration are bidding up construction costs, but lower demand is also weighing on builder sentiment. Existing home sales slipped for the third time in four months to 0.5% in April, to a 4.0 million annualized pace, and while new home sales rose to the highest level in three years, it was likely only a temporary pop. For May, we expect more of the same and for sales to remain within their narrow ranges from the past couple of years. We look for existing home sales to slow to a 3.93 million seasonally adjusted annual rate in May, which would near recently-hit lows. For new home sales, we expect they also slipped but to a 682K rate. Mortgage rates have moved higher again in recent months, eroding demand. Inventory also remains a challenge. Slower sales have allowed for a slight uptick in available supply, but most of the new supply has come from new construction and overall inventories remain low, keeping prices elevated and demand strapped. We expect it will be some time before we see the housing market regain its footing. Source: Wells Fargo Bank Weekly Economic & Financial Commentary
