NATIONAL BUILDER DIVISION

WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE	APR
	4.99%	5.05%
FHA	4.45%	4.79%
10 Yr Yield	2.78%		The white-hot housing market, although resilient, has not been entirely immune to the effects of rising mortgage rates. Mortgage applications faltered in February before picking back up slightly in March. Rapidly rising rates will likely spur buyers to lock-in purchases in the near term, which should provide a short-term counter to the increasing headwinds brought about by higher rates and double-digit price appreciation. Rising mortgage rates are sure to erode affordability in the long term, but many buyers, particularly entry-level, have already been sidelined by rising rates. The National Association of Realtor's housing affordability index posted a 143.0 print in January, a pandemic low and a level more than 40 points lower from the pandemic peak seen in January 2021. The index is skirting close to its lowest level since the Great Recession, indicating the increasing hindrances facing homebuyers. Some builders have seen an uptick in cancellations due to rising borrowing costs; however, the rate is still well below historical norms. NATIONAL BUILDER DIVISION

Financing		Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 4.99%	APR 5.05%
FHA	4.45%	4.79%
10 Yr Yield	2.78%	The white-hot housing market, although resilient, has not been entirely immune to the effects of rising mortgage rates. Mortgage applications faltered in February before picking back up slightly in March. Rapidly rising rates will likely spur buyers to lock-in purchases in the near term, which should provide a short-term counter to the increasing headwinds brought about by higher rates and double-digit price appreciation. Rising mortgage rates are sure to erode affordability in the long term, but many buyers, particularly entry-level, have already been sidelined by rising rates. The National Association of Realtor's housing affordability index posted a 143.0 print in January, a pandemic low and a level more than 40 points lower from the pandemic peak seen in January 2021. The index is skirting close to its lowest level since the Great Recession, indicating the increasing hindrances facing homebuyers. Some builders have seen an uptick in cancellations due to rising borrowing costs; however, the rate is still well below historical norms. NATIONAL BUILDER DIVISION

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV			The white-hot housing market, although resilient, has not been entirely immune to the effects of rising mortgage rates. Mortgage applications faltered in February before picking back up slightly in March. Rapidly rising rates will likely spur buyers to lock-in purchases in the near term, which should provide a short-term counter to the increasing headwinds brought about by higher rates and double-digit price appreciation. Rising mortgage rates are sure to erode affordability in the long term, but many buyers, particularly entry-level, have already been sidelined by rising rates. The National Association of Realtor's housing affordability index posted a 143.0 print in January, a pandemic low and a level more than 40 points lower from the pandemic peak seen in January 2021. The index is skirting close to its lowest level since the Great Recession, indicating the increasing hindrances facing homebuyers. Some builders have seen an uptick in cancellations due to rising borrowing costs; however, the rate is still well below historical norms.
