WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 3.50%	APR 3.66%	December existing home sales rose a solid 3.6% to a 5.54 million-unit pace as the housing market renaissance continues. Lower mortgage rates have brought buyers back into the market, particularly in the South and West, where population and employment growth remain the strongest. The rebound in existing home sales follows a string of positive housing reports and will have sizable pass-through effects, including realtors' commissions and remodeling spending. Inventories are extremely low, however, which is driving price appreciation higher again - the median single-family home price rose 8.0% year-over-year in December - which is spurring more construction. Housing starts reached a 13-year high in December and builder optimism is holding near 20-year highs. With this backdrop and no discernible uptick in jobless claims, the housing market is clear for further gains. Keep an eye on the residential construction line. Residential investment seems to be a bright spot in the outlook; demand is on the rise as lower mortgage rates entice prospective buyers to enter the market. Source: Wells Fargo Bank. 10 Yr Yield			1.62%
			December existing home sales rose a solid 3.6% to a 5.54 million-unit pace as the housing market renaissance continues. Lower mortgage rates have brought buyers back into the market, particularly in the South and West, where population and employment growth remain the strongest. The rebound in existing home sales follows a string of positive housing reports and will have sizable pass-through effects, including realtors' commissions and remodeling spending. Inventories are extremely low, however, which is driving price appreciation higher again - the median single-family home price rose 8.0% year-over-year in December - which is spurring more construction. Housing starts reached a 13-year high in December and builder optimism is holding near 20-year highs. With this backdrop and no discernible uptick in jobless claims, the housing market is clear for further gains. Keep an eye on the residential construction line. Residential investment seems to be a bright spot in the outlook; demand is on the rise as lower mortgage rates entice prospective buyers to enter the market. Source: Wells Fargo Bank. ## WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

CONV			December existing home sales rose a solid 3.6% to a 5.54 million-unit pace as the housing market renaissance continues. Lower mortgage rates have brought buyers back into the market, particularly in the South and West, where population and employment growth remain the strongest. The rebound in existing home sales follows a string of positive housing reports and will have sizable pass-through effects, including realtors' commissions and remodeling spending. Inventories are extremely low, however, which is driving price appreciation higher again - the median single-family home price rose 8.0% year-over-year in December - which is spurring more construction. Housing starts reached a 13-year high in December and builder optimism is holding near 20-year highs. With this backdrop and no discernible uptick in jobless claims, the housing market is clear for further gains. Keep an eye on the residential construction line. Residential investment seems to be a bright spot in the outlook; demand is on the rise as lower mortgage rates entice prospective buyers to enter the market. Source: Wells Fargo Bank.
