WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV
FHA
10 Yr Yield
RATE 7.13% 6.79%			Higher financing costs are cutting into certain segments of construction. Total construction outlays increased 0.4% in September, the ninth consecutive monthly improvement. The trend rise is mostly owed to an upturn in residential spending. Builders have desensitized their industry to the effects of higher interest rates by offering mortgage rate buydowns and other incentives that have helped shore up demand for new homes. By contrast, multifamily construction outlays have been less resilient amid rising apartment vacancy rates, prompting the first dip in multifamily outlays in 13 months. The FOMC concluded its most recent policy meeting on Nov. 1 and, to nobody's surprise, the committee unanimously agreed to keep its target rate for the federal funds rate unchanged at 5.25%-5.50%. The committee kept the door open to further tightening by reiterating that "inflation remains elevated," and that it will monitor economic and financial developments when "determining the extent of additional policy firming that may be appropriate." WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

CONV	RATE 7.13%	APR 7.55%
FHA	6.79%	7.75%	Higher financing costs are cutting into certain segments of construction. Total construction outlays increased 0.4% in September, the ninth consecutive monthly improvement. The trend rise is mostly owed to an upturn in residential spending. Builders have desensitized their industry to the effects of higher interest rates by offering mortgage rate buydowns and other incentives that have helped shore up demand for new homes. By contrast, multifamily construction outlays have been less resilient amid rising apartment vacancy rates, prompting the first dip in multifamily outlays in 13 months. The FOMC concluded its most recent policy meeting on Nov. 1 and, to nobody's surprise, the committee unanimously agreed to keep its target rate for the federal funds rate unchanged at 5.25%-5.50%. The committee kept the door open to further tightening by reiterating that "inflation remains elevated," and that it will monitor economic and financial developments when "determining the extent of additional policy firming that may be appropriate." Higher financing costs are cutting into certain segments of construction. Total construction outlays increased 0.4% in September, the ninth consecutive monthly improvement. The trend rise is mostly owed to an upturn in residential spending. Builders have desensitized their industry to the effects of higher interest rates by offering mortgage rate buydowns and other incentives that have helped shore up demand for new homes. By contrast, multifamily construction outlays have been less resilient amid rising apartment vacancy rates, prompting the first dip in multifamily outlays in 13 months. The FOMC concluded its most recent policy meeting on Nov. 1 and, to nobody's surprise, the committee unanimously agreed to keep its target rate for the federal funds rate unchanged at 5.25%-5.50%. The committee kept the door open to further tightening by reiterating that "inflation remains elevated," and that it will monitor economic and financial developments when "determining the extent of additional policy firming that may be appropriate."
