WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV			Total housing starts declined 9.4% in September, but with all of the drop tied to multifamily starts- which have fallen in three of the past four months-we still believe homebuilding may finally be gaining some momentum. Single-family starts rose 0.3% in September, which marked the fourth consecutive increase. While single-family permits are running below starts, we suspect that both starts and permits are headed higher. The latest data from the NAHB/Wells Fargo Housing Market Index show builders are remarkably upbeat, with the index at its highest level in nearly two years. Lower mortgage rates and a shift by homebuilders to focus on more affordable product appear to be bringing buyers back to the market. We expect continued builder optimism and increased buyer demand pushed total housing starts up to a 1,295K pace in October. Consumer spending continues to be the ray of sunshine pushing through the storm clouds that have grown increasingly dark amid a producer-led slowdown. During October, retail sales advanced a sturdy 0.3%, while industrial production fell 0.8%. Equity markets have continued to reach all-time highs, signaling fears of an imminent recession have subsided. Source: Wells Fargo Bank.

NATIONAL BUILDER DIVISION

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV
RATE			Total housing starts declined 9.4% in September, but with all of the drop tied to multifamily starts- which have fallen in three of the past four months-we still believe homebuilding may finally be gaining some momentum. Single-family starts rose 0.3% in September, which marked the fourth consecutive increase. While single-family permits are running below starts, we suspect that both starts and permits are headed higher. The latest data from the NAHB/Wells Fargo Housing Market Index show builders are remarkably upbeat, with the index at its highest level in nearly two years. Lower mortgage rates and a shift by homebuilders to focus on more affordable product appear to be bringing buyers back to the market. We expect continued builder optimism and increased buyer demand pushed total housing starts up to a 1,295K pace in October. Consumer spending continues to be the ray of sunshine pushing through the storm clouds that have grown increasingly dark amid a producer-led slowdown. During October, retail sales advanced a sturdy 0.3%, while industrial production fell 0.8%. Equity markets have continued to reach all-time highs, signaling fears of an imminent recession have subsided. Source: Wells Fargo Bank. Weekly Economic & Financial Commentary

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 3.46%	APR 3.57%	Total housing starts declined 9.4% in September, but with all of the drop tied to multifamily starts- which have fallen in three of the past four months-we still believe homebuilding may finally be gaining some momentum. Single-family starts rose 0.3% in September, which marked the fourth consecutive increase. While single-family permits are running below starts, we suspect that both starts and permits are headed higher. The latest data from the NAHB/Wells Fargo Housing Market Index show builders are remarkably upbeat, with the index at its highest level in nearly two years. Lower mortgage rates and a shift by homebuilders to focus on more affordable product appear to be bringing buyers back to the market. We expect continued builder optimism and increased buyer demand pushed total housing starts up to a 1,295K pace in October. Consumer spending continues to be the ray of sunshine pushing through the storm clouds that have grown increasingly dark amid a producer-led slowdown. During October, retail sales advanced a sturdy 0.3%, while industrial production fell 0.8%. Equity markets have continued to reach all-time highs, signaling fears of an imminent recession have subsided. Source: Wells Fargo Bank. Weekly Economic & Financial Commentary
