WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
	RATE	APR
CONV	2.85%	3.06%
FHA	2.25%	2.91%
10 Yr Yield	1.61%		U.S. home construction fell a surprisingly sharp 9.5% in April and economists attributed that partially to builders who delayed projects because of a surge in lumber prices and other supply constraints. The April decline left construction at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.57 million units, according to the Commerce Department. That was down from a rate of 1.73 million units in March, which had been the best showing since homes were constructed at a rate of 1.74 million units in July 2006 at the peak of that decade's housing boom. Applications for building permits, considered a sign of future activity, rose 0.3% in April to an annual rate of 1.76 million units, suggesting that the April construction dip will be temporary. Economists linked the April decline to reports of builders delaying projects because of soaring lumber prices and snarled supply chains that have made it difficult to get products like appliances. The price of lumber alone has added $35,872 to the price of an average single-family home, according to the National Association of Home Builders. Source: Martin Crutsinger AP Economics Writer

CONV	RATE 2.85%	APR 3.06%
FHA	2.25%	2.91%	U.S. home construction fell a surprisingly sharp 9.5% in April and economists attributed that partially to builders who delayed projects because of a surge in lumber prices and other supply constraints. The April decline left construction at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.57 million units, according to the Commerce Department. That was down from a rate of 1.73 million units in March, which had been the best showing since homes were constructed at a rate of 1.74 million units in July 2006 at the peak of that decade's housing boom. Applications for building permits, considered a sign of future activity, rose 0.3% in April to an annual rate of 1.76 million units, suggesting that the April construction dip will be temporary. Economists linked the April decline to reports of builders delaying projects because of soaring lumber prices and snarled supply chains that have made it difficult to get products like appliances. The price of lumber alone has added $35,872 to the price of an average single-family home, according to the National Association of Home Builders. Source: Martin Crutsinger AP Economics Writer

WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV			U.S. home construction fell a surprisingly sharp 9.5% in April and economists attributed that partially to builders who delayed projects because of a surge in lumber prices and other supply constraints. The April decline left construction at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.57 million units, according to the Commerce Department. That was down from a rate of 1.73 million units in March, which had been the best showing since homes were constructed at a rate of 1.74 million units in July 2006 at the peak of that decade's housing boom. Applications for building permits, considered a sign of future activity, rose 0.3% in April to an annual rate of 1.76 million units, suggesting that the April construction dip will be temporary. Economists linked the April decline to reports of builders delaying projects because of soaring lumber prices and snarled supply chains that have made it difficult to get products like appliances. The price of lumber alone has added $35,872 to the price of an average single-family home, according to the National Association of Home Builders. Source: Martin Crutsinger AP Economics Writer
