			A recent strong report from the National Association of Homebuilders set the tone for another round of strong housing data. The NAHB index rose two points to a record high 85. A drop in new apartment construction led to a below consensus housing starts report by single-family starts rose solidly. Existing home sales easily topped expectations, with sales jumping 9.4% to a 6.54-million unit pace. Sales of new homes rose 4.8% to a 1.011-million unit pace during August. This robust upturn was the strongest pace of sales since September 2006. Sales were especially strong in the South, which registered the fastest pace of sales (636,000) since 2005. The region's outperformance is likely owed to the ongoing shift away from the higher-cost areas in the West and Northeast. Despite record-low mortgage rates, it will likely be difficult to sustain such a rapid pace of sales. Employment growth appears to be moderating, which may soon begin to cut into demand for housing. Inventories also remain low, suggesting builders are selling homes faster than they can build them. Lumber prices have begun to ease recently but remain very high, which may delay new construction. Overall, we expect new homes sales to remain strong, but some moderation in growth is likely in the months ahead. Source: Wells Fargo Bank. Weekly Economic & Financial Commentary

WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV			A recent strong report from the National Association of Homebuilders set the tone for another round of strong housing data. The NAHB index rose two points to a record high 85. A drop in new apartment construction led to a below consensus housing starts report by single-family starts rose solidly. Existing home sales easily topped expectations, with sales jumping 9.4% to a 6.54-million unit pace. Sales of new homes rose 4.8% to a 1.011-million unit pace during August. This robust upturn was the strongest pace of sales since September 2006. Sales were especially strong in the South, which registered the fastest pace of sales (636,000) since 2005. The region's outperformance is likely owed to the ongoing shift away from the higher-cost areas in the West and Northeast. Despite record-low mortgage rates, it will likely be difficult to sustain such a rapid pace of sales. Employment growth appears to be moderating, which may soon begin to cut into demand for housing. Inventories also remain low, suggesting builders are selling homes faster than they can build them. Lumber prices have begun to ease recently but remain very high, which may delay new construction. Overall, we expect new homes sales to remain strong, but some moderation in growth is likely in the months ahead. Source: Wells Fargo Bank. Weekly Economic & Financial Commentary

WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

CONV	RATE 2.81%	APR 3.50%
FHA	2.25%	2.91%	A recent strong report from the National Association of Homebuilders set the tone for another round of strong housing data. The NAHB index rose two points to a record high 85. A drop in new apartment construction led to a below consensus housing starts report by single-family starts rose solidly. Existing home sales easily topped expectations, with sales jumping 9.4% to a 6.54-million unit pace. Sales of new homes rose 4.8% to a 1.011-million unit pace during August. This robust upturn was the strongest pace of sales since September 2006. Sales were especially strong in the South, which registered the fastest pace of sales (636,000) since 2005. The region's outperformance is likely owed to the ongoing shift away from the higher-cost areas in the West and Northeast. Despite record-low mortgage rates, it will likely be difficult to sustain such a rapid pace of sales. Employment growth appears to be moderating, which may soon begin to cut into demand for housing. Inventories also remain low, suggesting builders are selling homes faster than they can build them. Lumber prices have begun to ease recently but remain very high, which may delay new construction. Overall, we expect new homes sales to remain strong, but some moderation in growth is likely in the months ahead. Source: Wells Fargo Bank. Weekly Economic & Financial Commentary
