WEEKLY FINANCIAL NEWS

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 6.13%	APR 6.35%
FHA	6.13%	6.25%	As housing demand stabilizes, low existing home inventory has nudged buyers toward new construction. March marked the third increase in new home sales in the past four months, indicating a trend improvement in buyer demand. In fact, the 9.6% leap in March brought new home sales to its highest sales pace since March 2022 when the Fed had just started tightening and mortgage rates averaged 4.2%. Builders have rallied in response, leading to three consecutive monthly upturns in single-family building permits. Despite seemingly greater comfortability in the high mortgage rate environment, buyers continue to respond to incremental rate changes. For example, buyers jumped on lower mortgage rates at the start of the year, which explains much of the pickup in housing market activity in the first quarter. But after bottoming out at 6.1% the first week of February, mortgage rates climbed back to 6.7% by the first two weeks of March and averaged 6.5% in April. We expect the step up in financing costs likely put a dent in demand and estimate that new home sales dipped 2.6% over the month. If realized, this pace would result in a 665,000 annual rate, well above the recent bottom hit last September (550,000). Source: Wells Fargo Bank Weekly Economic & Financial Commentary

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 6.13%	APR 6.35%
FHA	RATE 6.13%	APR 6.25%
10 Yr Yield	3.70%		As housing demand stabilizes, low existing home inventory has nudged buyers toward new construction. March marked the third increase in new home sales in the past four months, indicating a trend improvement in buyer demand. In fact, the 9.6% leap in March brought new home sales to its highest sales pace since March 2022 when the Fed had just started tightening and mortgage rates averaged 4.2%. Builders have rallied in response, leading to three consecutive monthly upturns in single-family building permits. Despite seemingly greater comfortability in the high mortgage rate environment, buyers continue to respond to incremental rate changes. For example, buyers jumped on lower mortgage rates at the start of the year, which explains much of the pickup in housing market activity in the first quarter. But after bottoming out at 6.1% the first week of February, mortgage rates climbed back to 6.7% by the first two weeks of March and averaged 6.5% in April. We expect the step up in financing costs likely put a dent in demand and estimate that new home sales dipped 2.6% over the month. If realized, this pace would result in a 665,000 annual rate, well above the recent bottom hit last September (550,000). Source: Wells Fargo Bank Weekly Economic & Financial Commentary

Financing			Market Commentary
CONV	RATE 6.13%	APR 6.35%
FHA	6.13%	6.25%
10 Yr Yield	3.70%		As housing demand stabilizes, low existing home inventory has nudged buyers toward new construction. March marked the third increase in new home sales in the past four months, indicating a trend improvement in buyer demand. In fact, the 9.6% leap in March brought new home sales to its highest sales pace since March 2022 when the Fed had just started tightening and mortgage rates averaged 4.2%. Builders have rallied in response, leading to three consecutive monthly upturns in single-family building permits. Despite seemingly greater comfortability in the high mortgage rate environment, buyers continue to respond to incremental rate changes. For example, buyers jumped on lower mortgage rates at the start of the year, which explains much of the pickup in housing market activity in the first quarter. But after bottoming out at 6.1% the first week of February, mortgage rates climbed back to 6.7% by the first two weeks of March and averaged 6.5% in April. We expect the step up in financing costs likely put a dent in demand and estimate that new home sales dipped 2.6% over the month. If realized, this pace would result in a 665,000 annual rate, well above the recent bottom hit last September (550,000). Source: Wells Fargo Bank Weekly Economic & Financial Commentary
